

bestrx

Atlanta doctors provide answers to your questions

Louis DeJoseph, M.D.
Premier Image
Cosmetic & Laser Surgery

I have very droopy eyelids. Is there a way to fix this?

Absolutely! This is one of the most common cosmetic complaints we see on a daily basis. Droopy eyelids occur for several reasons, including excess eyelid skin, eyebrows that have lowered with age or a weakened muscle that opens the eyelid. Corrective surgery options include a blepharoplasty to remove the excess droopy eyelid skin, an endoscopic browlift to lift the brows into an arched position or a muscle tightening (ptosis repair) to help lift the eyelid. A consultation with a board-certified facial plastic surgeon is important to determine which of these procedures is right for you.

[editorial]

[The Reynolds Group Inc.] [www.thereynoldsgroupinc.com]