Having grown up in a family of medical experts, Dr. DeJoseph's father was a cardiologist and his mother a nurse, so as expected—the conversations around the dinner table were usually about something medical. As a child, Dr. DeJoseph “loved the impact (my father) had on his patients from his bedside manner to getting them back to health. So, I set my sites on medical school and was exposed to plastic surgery early on. I was amazed at what these surgeons did. Their ability to put someone back together after an accident or make their outside match their inside was incredible to me.” The rest is history!

Fast forward to today where Dr. DeJoseph practices in his exquisite 6,500 sq. ft. state-of-the-art facility (with another 3,500 sq. ft. awaiting expansion!), and continues to grow his team of experts with the recent addition of facial plastic surgeon Dr. Paul Daraei and is in the process of recruiting a body expert in the near future. He is also a Fellowship Director for the American Academy of Facial Plastic & Reconstructive Surgery which provides him the opportunity to train and mentor young facial plastic surgeons who share the same passion. He shares of his Fellowship Director role, “It’s an incredible feeling to see (young facial surgeons) succeed with the skills you passed on to them.”

The Premier Image team shares an inner motto of “treat everyone like family” which rings true every day in their office. “It’s a simple mantra that, unfortunately, is lost on much of modern medicine”, says Dr. DeJoseph. Their team focuses on inspiring others through their daily interactions inside and outside the office where they practice love, acceptance and igniting the power in others by celebrating individuality.

Lastly, Dr. DeJoseph shares about the ethos behind his successful practice, “We are a specialty practice; we align ourselves to areas where we exhibit strengths. This allows us to ensure the absolute best surgery for your issue in helping you achieve your goals. Facial plastic surgery is not a hobby and we pride ourselves on being true specialists in facial rejuvenation.”
